European Economic and Business Life: Travailler en contexte international

2nd Semester 2018-2019

Course Instructor: Dr Emilie Tran

Students will be involved in a simulated professional situation with representatives from the French-speaking European countries and their international partners in this course, and develop their knowledge about the business world so as to acquire a "know-how" tool set in an occupational context. Students' communication and interpersonal skills are enhanced in such an international professional setting, with a focus on the French-language work environment.

Never Take Things For Granted

Partnering with a French business community, students of this course will serve the underprivileged in Hong Kong, particularly low income workers. The purpose of this service project is twofold: students gain hands-on experience working in a French-language environment and keep the spirit of serving even after they graduate, just like the voluntary groups they work with.

Did You Know?

1.37 million people in Hong Kong are living below the official poverty line.
